TWILIGHT AT KALAHUIPUA'A
EVENINGS UNDER A HULA MOON

Every month when the full moon rises, Mauna Lani Resort gets ready for an enchanted evening of storytelling and entertainment on the lawn of the resort's oceanfront Eva Parker Woods Cottage. Hotel guests, Hawaii residents, and hotel/resort employees and their families are all welcome to join Danny Kaniela Akaka for "Twilight at Kalahuipua'a," a night of music, dance and storytelling.

Danny is Mauna Lani's Cultural Historian, he is a kahu (Hawaiian priest), speaks fluent Hawaiian, performs as a musician and dancer, and is a caretaker of Mauna Lani's endangered Hawaiian green sea turtle program. Since not many hotels can boast an on-staff cultural historian, Mauna Lani asked Danny to share his knowledge of Hawaii's myths and legends with employees, families and guests.

"Twilight at Kalahuipua'a" was designed to perpetuate the traditional folk art of storytelling. Everyone in attendance – not only the professional entertainment – is invited to share stories, family histories, songs, and dance. It gives hotel guests a chance to experience the true aloha spirit, and residents the opportunity to meet and share stories with people from around the world.

The charming Eva Parker Woods Cottage houses historical artifacts that were excavated at Kalahuipua'a, the land now called Mauna Lani. This oceanfront location marks the piko (spiritual center) of the resort's ancient Hawaiian fishponds, making it the perfect venue for this full moon event.
